  - 4.1      rescind the decision in paragraph 3 above; and instead
  - 4.2      agree that the Ombudsman and the Monitor not be required to enter partnerships with iwi or Māori Organisations, but must endeavour to develop arrangements with iwi and Māori organisations in order to demonstrate a practical commitment to the principles of the Treaty of Waitangi;

- 5.2.1 are provided to children, young people and their whānau who have been brought to the attention of Oranga Tamariki (e.g., through a report of concern, or who are involved with early support, intensive response, care, youth justice, or transitions); and
  - 5.2.2 aim to address risk factors that increase the likelihood of involvement in the statutory care, protection and youth justice system;

System inquiries and information

- 6 agreed that the Children and Young People's Commission can require the provision of information, including personal information from which identifying information has been removed, from agencies for the purpose of supporting their function to generally inquire into systemic issues relating to children and young people;

Governance – Children and Young People's Commission

- 7 agreed that the minimum board size for the Children and Young People's Commission board be increased from 2 to 3 members;
- 8 agreed that, consistent with the partnership principle within the Treaty, and in addition to the usual competencies required for board members, the Children and Young People's Commission board members must have the capacity and capability to:
- 8.1 have a strong focus on the rights, interests, and wellbeing of tamariki and rangatahi;
  - 8.2 set strategic priorities and work programmes that support improved outcomes for tamariki and rangatahi;
  - 8.3 include Māori participation and te ao Māori approaches in the discharge of its functions;
